

Statement on News Coverage of Gaza

As violence in Israel and Gaza continues to escalate, corporate news outlets in the United States have consistently failed in their duty to provide Americans with the crucial historical context and diversity of viewpoints necessary to fully understand the unfolding tragedy.

One-sided reporting that favors the narratives and voices of Israeli officials and their allies, frequent and unquestioning reporting of sensational but unconfirmed events, and an almost total omission of the key historical facts that led to the crisis have played a major role in misinforming American citizens. Corporate media have also failed to accurately portray the United States' role in the ongoing conflict between Israel and Palestine.

Project Censored condemns this massive failure of the corporate media.
